God

Lesson for October 14, 1962

What is more important than God? Even to ask the question is absurd. The Bible is so filled with truth about God that a lifetime of study could not draw from the Scripture all that is there to be found. Because there is such an "embarrassment of riches" we have to make some selection here. We mention only a few great truths about god, all found in the 17th chapter of Acts. The passage, Acts 17:22 now 29, is part of a sermon Paul preached to a pagan audience in the city of Athens. If you had a chance to speak to educated non-Christians about God, how would you start? What would you say first?

Creator and Lord

Paul begins by reminding the Athenians that they were not atheists. Their worship was that they believed in too many gods. They were so anxious not to neglect any god that they had actually put up an altar to "An Unknown God." Whoever was responsible for that altar must have felt there was some other God out of sight. Paul brings the word that this "unknown god" is after all, the true one. He is "the God"—the only one. No part of this earth is outside his realm . . . only that is saying too little; in this spaceminded era Paul might well have said that God made the Universe and everything in it. He is the God of every star and every planet, no matter how many light-years away. As Creator, he does more than make worlds without number. He peoples them with inhabitants without number. He makes life populate here on this earth. Wherever in this vast universe life exists — if it does — there it is God who is both Creator and Preserver, and therefore Lord of heaven and earth, and of all their inhabitants.

"We are His offspring"

Further, God as Creator is Father of all. Paul shows his knowledge (we did not say, shows off his knowledge) by quoting from a Greek poet Aratus — or another one. Cleanthes, who said the same thing. "We are His offspring." In plain English, we are children of God. Children, that is, in the sense that we are His creatures. we owe our existence to Him. There are three "levels" (so to speak) of the fatherhood of God. First He is the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ; this is unique no other is in the class with Christ. Second, He is Father of believers, Father of those who love Him and desire to live as His children. Third He is Father of all men, though most men do not know this nor care, but are self-made orphans.

God is Spirit

Jesus had said long before this, "God is Spirit." Paul does not use this word but he speaks of what God is not. He does not live in shrines made by hand; He is not served by human hands; in Him we live and move and are; "the Deity is not like gold, or silver, or stone, a representation by the art and imagination of man." If we are God's offspring, then a human being is more nearly like God than anything else in the universe; so true is this, that when God set out to make his special and supreme revelation of Himself. He did this through the man Christ Jesus. So Paul gently but plainly condemns all idols.

"That they might seek after Him"

A little boy said: "I like God. He hides and we have to find Him." There is truth in that. God is not obvious, we can go through life denying that He exists but He is there all the time. Rather, He is here, here wherever we may be. He is not far from each one of us (and remember, Paul was speaking to non-Christians) yet nevertheless the Bible often speaks of man's seeking God. The point here is that God made man and has taken care of him, for one main purpose, namely: that men might seek God in hope. God is not a silent God, He is not aloof and remote, deaf to man's cries. God wants to be wanted. He wants His children-by-creation to become His children-by-grace. But God will not force His way into any heart. He would rather be sought freely and eagerly than to compel men to worship Him.

J-Vees Win First

Whip Amherst 13-6

The Appomattox High School J-Vees won their first game of the season last Saturday night with a slim 13-6 victory over Amherst. The game, played under lights before a fine crowd, was an extremely interesting game.

Amherst jumped out in front early in the first quarter after blocking a punt on the Rebel 35 yard line. From there the Lancers marched over in eight plays with Johnson taking it over. The extra point failed.

The "Baby Rebels" came back in the second quarter with Quarterback Wilfred Rodgers going over from eight yards out. A pass from Rodgers to Mitchell put the Confederates out in front 7-6.

The Rebels came back about the middle of the third quarter with their final score of the night. This time Rodgers took a punt on the Lancer 30 yard line and with James Totty throwing a key block to break him loose, Rodgers galloped all the way to pay dirt. The attempt for the extra point failed.

The game was played under the best of conditions and both teams did very well. The "Little Rebels" will play twice this week as they journey to Y. E. S. Wednesday and William Campbell Thursday.
